DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Reiter (U.S. 5,885,190) in view of Hirsch (U.S. 5,423,730). Reiter discloses a device comprising a pulley (7) and a hook (1) adapted for receiving the pulley, the hook capable of being removably secured to the top of a conventional door, a length of rope (7a) passing through the pulley and handles at the respective ends of the rope. Reiter fails to teach the handles being in the shape of a ball. Hirsch teaches an analogous device including a pulley, a rope, and a various handles that could be placed at the end of the rope including a ball shaped handle (84) sized to fit in a user's palm, and containing an opening wherein the rope is secured through the diameter of the ball. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to substitute the handle of Reiter for the ball shaped handle of Hirsch as an art-recognized alternative. Furthermore, limitations drawn to the specific materials of the ball are considered matters of simple design choice well within the knowledge of the skilled artisan.

3. With respect to claims 5-8, the modified Reiter device has disclosed the claimed structural features. Reiter further teaches that the device may be used for a variety of exercises. The specific method steps would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill as it is necessary to exercise using the rope and pulley by placing one handle in each hand and pulling back and forth between the two handles allowing the rope to slide along the pulley thus lowering one arm and raising the other.

Conclusion

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
